SPEAKER PROFILE

Jamesena McElroy

Jamesena McElroy is responsible for oversight in the planning, development, implementation, evaluation and support of all programs and activities related to the INsTEP grant. She is responsible for overseeing the development and implementation of technology certification courses delivered in a hybrid format that will result in stacked credentials. She is responsible for collaboration with Prince George's Community College academic departments to establish education and career pathways from noncredit to associate degree programs.

McElroy received her B.S. in Information Systems, Computer Science and Industrial Engineering from the University of Pittsburgh, and her M.A. in Divinity from The Samuel Kelsey Bible Institute.
